

she had a decided break in her mental condition. She was then living in Florida with her husband, Harry P. Babcock. Mr. Babcock put her in a hospital in Florida and advised us of her condition. I arranged with the doctor in Florida to have her sent North with a trained nurse. I met her in Washington with a nurse whom I took with me from Frederick and brought her up to Dr. Riggs' Sanitorium at Ijamsville. After she had been there five or six months we felt that better results could be obtained at the Springfield State Hospital at Sykesville, and I arranged for her admission there, and subsequently took her there for admission. After she had been in the hospital at Sykesville two or three years the doctors there felt that she might live outside the hospital in a private home under the general supervision of the medical staff of the hospital. With the aid of the hospital authorities I arranged for her being placed in a private home near Eldersburg. She lived in this home about a year and then arrangements were made to place her with Mrs. Hutchins near Westminster, which is also a private home, and where she is being well cared for and is apparently happy in her surroundings. I have always looked out for the arrangements for her welfare and support, first under the supervision of her mother, and since then as one of the Trustees under her mother's will.
